

How can you manage your British/German business goals in the current uncertain climate?

Fostering businesses, organisations and individuals across borders

Why we should jointly act:

The Bundesbank's most recently published revised figures show again the strong bilateral British-German trade to be the fifth largest of all German bilateral trade relationships, after the US, the Netherlands, France and China.

The total bilateral trade including goods and services in 2018 was € 176 bn, down slightly by 2.6% from € 181 bn in 2017 due to reduced goods demand in UK, mainly related to Brexit uncertainty.

About 2,500 German firms with around 400,000 employees do business in the United Kingdom. More than 1,200 British firms employing some 220,000 people are currently operating in Germany.

Plain numbers aside, we believe it is more important than ever before to foster international contacts and friendships between the United Kingdom, Germany and beyond.

In short: Whatever Brexit will bring in terms of change, the British-German business relationship remains crucial. For the United Kingdom. For Germany. For you.

How will you manage your UK/German business goals in the new environment?

How we can help:

In a world of accelerating complexity, volatility and disruption, businesses, organisations and individuals are looking for information, guidance and beneficial relationships to deal with their strategic and operational challenges.

The British Chamber of Commerce in Germany continually identifies relevant issues, bringing together experts, public bodies and our members to help them address and find solutions to their major concerns.

It is our genuine belief that economic prosperity and mutual respect for our cultures requires ongoing, open and direct cross-border dialogue.
