

FLY FROM FRANKFURT, DUSSELDORF, HAMBURG, BERLIN OR BREMEN TO LONDON'S MOST CONVENIENT AIRPORT

Connectivity between key German cities and London has received a strong boost this year with more routes and extra flights to London City Airport.

The airport, which is in London's Royal Docks, is the only airport actually situated in London and its location makes it one of the most convenient airports serving the UK capital city, just 13 minutes from Canary Wharf and 20 minutes from Tower Bridge and the Shard, Europe's tallest building.

It's now easier than ever to reach central London quickly if you're travelling from Frankfurt, Dusseldorf, Hamburg, Berlin or Bremen, thanks to London City Airport's short arrival time of just 15 minutes from plane to train, and quick onward connections via Docklands Light Railway.

There is lots of choice for passengers wishing to fly. This winter British Airways is offering up to 85 flights each week from German cities to London City Airport, including its three-a-day

Berlin service and a new route from Bremen to London City, operated by British Airways franchise partner SUN-AIR. Flybe also recently started a Dusseldorf-London City service, and Lufthansa continues to offer its service from Frankfurt, one of the most popular routes for business or finance professionals.

The airport's East London location is close to financial centres and world-class hubs for technology, innovation and start-ups, helping to bring closer ties between these business communities. With the highest proportion of business travellers of any UK airport passing through London City Airport; at 52%, passengers working in financial, business and government services can discover an airport which meets their needs and enables them to spend more time doing the things that matter.

Over 315,000 passengers have used London City Airport to fly between Germany so far this year – join them - and get closer to London. www.londoncityairport.com
